

When selfless dedication meets unwavering ambition, a story of triumph is etched into the hearts of all those touched by its warmth. Damari Rogers, a name synonymous with compassion and leadership at The Carver, has begun his next chapter at Johnson & Wales University, leaving behind a legacy that continues to inspire both on and off the basketball court.

During his time at The Carver, Damari served as a beacon of guidance for students, supporting them academically and coaching them on the basketball court during after-school hours. His commitment and passion for nurturing young talents swiftly earned him a place as one of the most beloved basketball coaches in The Carver's history. His influence extended beyond the court, fostering an environment of personal growth and community spirit.
